

Guitar in standard tuning – EADGBE

Capo on 2nd fret

Am F/G

You were just another sideshow

Am

In a back-street carnival

F/G

I was walking the high wire

Am

And trying not to fall

Dm C G

Just another way of getting through

C G F Am

Anyone would do, but it was you

F/G

You were just another sideshow

Am

And I was trying not to fall

Oh but you were tender

As soft summer wind

Someone to remember

When the cold closes in

You were colour to the moon

You were flowers come to bloom, with sweet perfume

And you were tender

As soft summer wind

I've seen the dark-side
When I'm trying to find the light
Seen the shadows fade away
On the wrong side of night
Heard a song coming through
And when I'm looking for you, I sing blue
Too long on the dark-side
Trying to find the light

Painting by Allan Black

We tend to live our lives a little like the high-wire acrobat – carefully placing one foot in front of the other, confident of where it leads and trying not to be distracted by anyone or anything who or that may cross our line of sight. But it's the unexpected, the side show, that can, or who can, bring a sparkle to your life and “colour to the moon”. And if that capricious wind does blow in your favour, you must be prepared to jump from the safety of the wire and see what happens – maybe you'll land on your feet.
